Will Mambo co-owner serve time?

Revenge. Crown argues woman deserves 90 days, probation for retaliation over bad resto reviews

JOE LOFARO

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

The co-owner of the Mambo Nuevo Latino restaurant has already been punished by having her reputation attacked and should not serve a sentence behind bars, her defence lawyer argued Thursday at a sentencing hearing.

Marisol Simoes was found guilty Sept. 6 of the rarely used charge of defamatory libel by Justice Diane Lahaie, who ruled she was the one who sent a lewd email to a customer's employer and set up a fake online dating profile of Elayna Katz after she left a pair of negative reviews of the ByWord Market eatery on May 28, 2009.

Lahaie set a sentencing hearing for Nov. 16 after hearing arguments from the Crown and defence.

Simoes' lawyer, Henry Burr, argued the "substantial" media and Internet coverage of this case has spiralled to the point that it has negatively affected his client.

"Her personal reputation has been affected, her professional reputation has been affected and both businesses have been affected financially," said Burr.

He made the judge aware of the effect of widespread media coverage has had on Simoes, who never testified in her own defence in court. He told the court he was even contacted by the Dr. Phil talk show and Entertainment Tonight. He said a conditional sentence would be appropriate for Simoes.

"This is not our classic repeat offender," he added.

Crown attorney John Semenoff argued for a 90-day jail sentence and "a lengthy period of probation."

He said it was "troubling" that Simoes viewed herself as the victim in a pre-sentence report. Her online attacks on Katz over a prolonged period of time and her criminal record were cited by Semenoff as aggravating factors.

He argued a sentence served outside of jail would send the wrong message to the public about cyberbullying.

Katz said in a victim impact statement her reputation has been tarnished over the past two years.

"I suffered through an ongoing rollercoaster of emotions," she said.

She asked that Simoes deliver an apology to her and her employer.

Teachers' job action looms

Labour. High schools will open on Monday, OCDSB assures

High school teachers will give parent-teacher meetings a pass and do the bare minimum on report cards if their union and the province can't reach a deal by Monday morning.

"We have six of our nine bargaining units in a legal strike position," said Jennifer Adams, director of education at the Ottawa-Carleton District School Board, as the union sat down to negotiate with the province on Bill 115 Thursday.

Passed in September, the bill freezes teachers' wages, bans strikes for two years and prevents staff from banking sick days they could cash out at the end of their careers.

"We want to be very clear that all the schools will be open Monday," said Adams. "The impact will be more outside the classroom. Supervision of students in cafeterias and in the hallways will be different."

Adams said that the OCDSB is "anxious to get back to bargaining with local unions" to negotiate a new contract.

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation negotiating with the province is under a media blackout on the talks and would not provide comment.

Jan Fraser, first vice-president of the Ottawa-Carleton Elementary Teachers' Federation, said while her union is not in a strike position yet, it may not be far off.

"We've filed for conciliation," she said. "We have to meet with a conciliator and have them file a 'no-board' report. We're just not there yet."

Despite proclamations from Liberal leadership hopefuls early this week that they would work with teachers to find a solution to the impasse in negotiating a new contract, Fraser said she isn't hopeful.

"They need to repeal Bill 115. I haven't heard any Liberal say they're going to do that," she said. "How they're going to distance themselves from what (Premier Dalton) McGuinty has done is beyond me. They all voted for it."

A piece of a fossilized reptilian horn that sat in an Ottawa museum for decades has led to the discovery of a new dinosaur species the size of a rhinoceros that roamed Alberta 80 million years ago.

Pieces of skulls from the recently named Xenoceratops were originally dug up from rocky sediments in southern Alberta in 1958.

However, a pair of paleontologists rediscovered the bones a decade ago and gradually pieced together the sweeping neck plate of the four-footed, horn-headed giants.

Their work has been published in the October issue of the Canadian Journal of Earth Sciences.

The 3,000-kilogram creatures used their beak-like mouths to munch on plants and had a fearsome appearance due to a sweeping neck shield topped by two protruding spikes.

Canadian paleontologists Michael Ryan and David Evans say in their paper that the fossils were first discovered at a dig near Foremost, Alta., by American paleontologist Jann Langston Jr., who was working in Canada at the time.

They said Langston, now a professor emeritus at the University of Texas at Austin, left the bone fragments wrapped up and shelved in the Canadian Museum of Nature in Ottawa.

Evans said he and Ryan started to wonder in 2003 about two pieces of the neck shield — known as the frill — stored loosely in metal cabinets at the Ottawa museum. One was a spike and the other was an unusually large socket, he recalled.

He said the pieces aroused his curiosity in part because they came from rock formations that contained some of the oldest dinosaur fossils in Alberta.

"Sure enough there was much more material and that was the key to identifying the new species," Evans said in an interview. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saved from the blaze. Elderly man rescued by neighbour in house fire

An elderly man was rescued from his burning two-storey farm house on Mitch Owen's drive, by a neighbour, fire investigators say.

A woman living next door to the fire victim called 911, while her husband rushed to the burning house, fire officials say.

The man "forced his way inside the smoke-filled home and found the victim just inside on the floor and dragged him to safety. When fire crews arrived, the victim was sitting in his pickup truck and the neighbour was tending to him," Ottawa Fire Services Spokesman Marc Messier said in an email. "Ottawa Fire Services is crediting the neighbour for saving the victim's life."

The elderly man was treated by Ottawa Paramedic Services for smoke inhalation and possible broken ribs at the scene and then taken to hospital. His home was destroyed. Messier said that damage from the blaze has been estimated at $200,000 for the building and its contents.

The cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

Help. Sally Ann looking for Christmas volunteers

With just over a week to go before its campaign begins, The Salvation Army says it still needs volunteer Christmas Kettle bell ringers for its Christmas Kettle Campaign, which begins Nov. 16 and runs through Christmas Eve.

The Christmas Kettle Campaign depends on nearly 10,000 volunteer hours each year. Volunteering at a Christmas Kettle can mean as little as two hours and make a lasting difference.

"This campaign would not be possible without the generosity of our volunteers. It is with their help that allow us to assist thousands of families with toys, hot meals, warm clothing and the support they need during Christmas and all year long," said Salvation Army spokesman Michael Maidment.

Those interested in volunteering can go to ottawakettles.ca or call 613-241-1573, extension 233. METRO

Abused aboriginal women get a boost

Learning. A $100K job-training grant will help those who have been affected by violence

GRAHAM LANKTREE
graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

Aboriginal women victimized by violence will have help getting back on their feet thanks to a $100,000 boost from consulting firm Accenture and help from Ottawa's Minwaashin Lodge.

"It improved me psychologically and physically," said Lau St. Laurent of the Minwaashin Lodge program she enrolled in last January. The lodge runs programs to teach aboriginal women new skills, to go back to school and to start their own businesses.

Along with the money, employees from Accenture, a global management-consulting company, will give the lodge's women hands-on help in writing resumés and honing interview skills, and will mentor them on how to start their own businesses, said Irene Compton, employment-readiness program manager at the lodge.

"This is the first time a major corporation has stepped up to be mentors to our women," said Compton, adding that the grant would help expand their programs. "They're going to help us raise the profile of aboriginal-owned businesses in Ottawa."

An Inuk translator, St. Laurent said the lodge program she enrolled in has taught her how to be an administrative assistant. "Natives need this kind of course if we are interested in pursuing to better ourselves. It's traumatizing coming from a small settlement," she said. "Especially for the ones who aren't used to travelling down to southern Canada."

Mark Lambert, managing director of Accenture's Ottawa branch said the United Way brought the two groups together.

"We knew they would connect us with the right charity," he said. "We're pleased to announce our donation has already helped them to build a computer lab to help facilitate the job training."

Original Burger Joint. Upstart Glebe eatery aims to give back to community

graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

A new burger joint in the Glebe is looking to take on challenges coming up from the U.S. and even Ottawa stalwart The Works with a homemade creation.

"Since our kids don't like to eat a burger anywhere but at home, we figured we should open a restaurant," said Majida Abou Hamad, owner of the Original Burger Joint, who, along with her husband Georges, operates six Roast'n Brew coffee shops in the city.

"A few years ago they watched Super Size me and then didn't want to eat any fast food, so we made burgers at home," she said. "It's a simple menu. Our sauces are made from scratch. Our meat comes special from Glebe Meat Market every day."

Since it comes from right next door, the meat isn't frozen and is then mixed with spices, Abou Hamad said, adding she thinks of her burgers as old-fashioned.

"We signed up here before knowing there would be a Five Guys at Lansdowne," Georges Abou Hamad said. "There is enough people for everybody. We're not here to compete with anyone. The burger will never die."

At the heart of their burgers is a drive to give back to the community, the two said.

Four of the burgers on the menu are tied directly to charities, such as CHEO, the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation and Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

"I always wanted to build something that gave back," said Abou Hamad's husband. "We figured out we could open the burger joint and it could help in some way."

The CHEO

$1.50

The CHEO, made with roasted garlic and dijon mayo, sees $1.50 from each purchase donated directly to the hospital's charity.

Majida Abou Hamad, owner of the Original Burger Joint in the Glebe, said that $1.50 from four of the restaurant's burgers go directly to charities such as CHEO and the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation. GRAHAM LANKTREE/METRO

Windows 8 and Surface tablet bring Microsoft apps to users' fingertips

Upgrade. Company hoping to make inroads into tablet market

ROSANNA HAROUTOUNIAN
Ottawa@metronews.ca

Microsoft executives invited the media to their Ottawa offices on Thursday to showcase the new Windows 8 operating system and Surface tablet.

Microsoft virtually created the tablet market more than a decade ago, but tablets didn't take off with most consumers until the Apple iPad. Whether the new Microsoft entry can win Apple users back remains to be seen, as the new system only operates Windows applications. But for the PC-loyalist, the Surface is sure to be at the top of the holiday wish list.

What you'll notice first is the Live Tile interface, which fills the screen with colourful tiles representing programs and apps. Users can personalize the interface with whatever apps they desire, displayed the way they want. The apps can appear in different groups — for example, one for office applications and another for entertainment.

The apps are "live": they give users updated information on the tiles. A news app will display headlines, while an email app tells you how many new messages you've received.

They're connected in the sense that they share information. You can email someone a recipe without opening different browsers and copying and pasting URLs. It's also easy to connect with other devices to watch videos or play games.

A Microsoft ID makes it possible to access your interface from different Windows devices. The interface is best experienced on a touch-screen, which is where Microsoft's Surface comes in.

The Surface stores the functions of a PC in a light, yet sturdy tablet. The tablet can be propped up and attached to a keyboard, which is sold separately.

James Nicholson of Microsoft Canada shows off the new Windows 8 Live Tile interface at Ottawa headquarters on Thursday. ROSANNA HAROUTOUNIAN/FOR METRO

Nor'easter brings new misery to U.S. East Coast after Sandy

Still in the dark. More than a foot of snow falls on parts of New Jersey, causing further power outages

The New York-New Jersey region woke up to wet snow, hundreds of cancelled flights and more power outages Thursday after a new storm pushed back efforts to recover from a superstorm that left millions powerless and dozens dead last week.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo said losses from Superstorm Sandy in New York state could total $33 billion.

The new storm did not bring a second wave of flooding that some had feared.

"We lost power last week, just got it back for a day or two, and now we lost it again," said John Monticello of Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey.

"Every day it's the same now: Turn on the gas burner for heat. Instant coffee. Use the iPad to find out what's going on in the rest of the world."

But the new storm didn't appear to rouse exhausted residents of the country's most densely populated region to a new chorus of complaints. Except, perhaps, on this week's presidential election.

Valdimir Repnin emerged Thursday morning from his powerless Staten Island home with a snow shovel in his hand, and a question: "Who won? Obama?" he asked.

The region's greatest challenge remains finding emergency housing for tens of thousands of people, in some cases for the long term.

"We are going to have to look at a ground-up redesign," Cuomo said of the power and fuel supply systems. "With power outages, you paralyze the nation, and chaos ensues."

The United States has long been considered among the most conservative countries in the Western world, particularly when it comes to the importance of religion to its citizens and the distaste for the type of social safety net Canadians and Europeans so cherish.

But with the re-election of President Barack Obama this week on the overwhelming support of women, minorities, gays and young Americans, progressives are declaring the dawning of a liberal America.

Same-sex marriage is now the law in several states. A movement towards the decriminalization of marijuana is on the horizon. Wisconsin elected Tammy Baldwin to the U.S. Senate, the first openly gay member of the chamber.

Groups that voted in droves for Obama are swelling in numbers — Hispanics and Asian-Americans, in particular.

In 2011, minority births surpassed white births for the first time in the United States, and white men are now a dwindling minority. Indeed, by 2042, the majority of Americans won't be white.

Tuesday polls suggested a historic number of Americans who describe themselves as liberal. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Draft. Palestinians take first step to raise UN status to non-member observer state

The Palestinians took the first step toward raising their status at the United Nations from an observer to a non-member observer state Thursday by circulating a draft resolution to the 193 UN member states and asking for their support.

The Palestinian observer mission said no decision has been made on when to submit the draft resolution to the UN General Assembly for a vote. Arab League foreign ministers are expected to discuss the draft and the timing of its submission at a meeting in Cairo on Nov. 12-13, a Palestinian diplomat said, speaking on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak publicly.

A letter from the observer mission accompanying the draft resolution asks UN members to support "the enhancement of the status of Palestine in the United Nations General Assembly to be considered by the assembly at a date to be announced in the near future."

There are no vetoes in the General Assembly and the resolution is almost certain to be approved by the world body, which is dominated by countries sympathetic to the Palestinian cause. Approval of the resolution would elevate the Palestinians to the same status as the Vatican.

Explosive-filled tunnel explodes on Israel-Gaza border: Israeli military

Assad will 'live and die' in Syria

Civil war. Syrian President Bashar Assad vows in rare interview he won't be forced into exile and will die in his homeland

The bravado sounded familiar. Like the leaders of other countries swept away by Arab Spring uprisings, Syrian President Bashar Assad vowed to never be forced into exile and to die in his homeland.

Assad dug in his heels even as world powers move to boost the opposition in Syria's civil war — the latest turn in a nearly 20-month-old crisis so overwhelming that even the Red Cross says it can no longer cope.

"I am not a puppet, I was not made by the West for me to go to the West or any other country," Assad said in an interview with Russia Today, which posted excerpts Thursday on its website. "I am Syrian, I am made in Syria, and I will live and die in Syria."

The rare interview — in which the 47-year-old president spoke in English with his words translated into Arabic — was posted online two days after British Prime Minister David Cameron suggested that Assad could be allowed safe passage out of Syria if that would guarantee an end to the civil war.

The full interview will be broadcast Friday, the TV station said. It was not clear when or where it took place. Assad was seen in a grey suit and tie, casually talking and also walking with RT's reporter outside a house.

Assad has made only a few appearances public since the revolt began in March 2011. Last month, state TV showed him praying on the floor of a Damascus mosque for the Muslim holiday of Eid al-Adha.

As the two sides battle for the upper hand, civilians are bearing the brunt of the crisis.

Peter Maurer, the head of the Geneva-based International Committee of the Red Cross, said the civil war has been in a downward spiral for months.

"We can't cope with the worsening of the situation," Maurer said. "The seriousness of the crisis is deepening with every day and this trend has been uninterrupted since summer."

The Red Cross has improved its transportation and logistics, making it easier to bring in truckloads of food and medicine, but it has become overwhelmed by the dire need of hundreds of thousands of people struggling inside Syria, he said.

The daily death toll in the civil war has been averaging 100 or more recently, according to activists' accounts. The fighting pits rebels and troops, and the violence includes artillery shelling and regime airstrikes on rebel-held areas.

Canadian Forces. Military investigates racially charged video

A video showing a Canadian Forces officer with his face in brown makeup pretending to be Osama bin Laden's brother is in poor taste but does not reflect the wider military community, Defence Minister Peter MacKay said Thursday.

MacKay issued a statement in response to a video made in 2010 that features an unidentified military member stationed at 14 Wing Greenwood wearing a fake beard and turban, boasting that he worked with the leader of al-Qaida.

The CBC says it was leaked a copy of the video, which shows the officer calling a woman a "silly infidel," saying he drives a taxi and then later yelling at someone off-screen to get away from his car bomb.

MacKay said an investigation into what happened was launched as soon as the Defence Department became aware of the video's existence.

"Two years ago, certain members of the Canadian Forces stationed at CFB Greenwood filmed a video intended for their colleagues that featured inappropriate content and poor taste," MacKay said.

Capt. John Pulchny, a spokesman at 14 Wing Greenwood, said the Canadian Forces National Investigation Service is trying to determine who made the video and whether any military rules were broken. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Arizona gunman gets life in prison for 2011 rampage

Giffords' shooter sentenced. Jared Lee Loughner pleads guilty, could still receive death penalty from state prosecutors

A man whose 2011 shooting rampage killed six people and wounded 13 others, including Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords, was ordered Thursday to serve seven consecutive life sentences, plus 140 years in federal prison.

Jared Lee Loughner, 24, pleaded guilty under an agreement that guarantees he will spend the rest of his life in prison without the possibility of parole. He avoids a federal death sentence, although state prosecutors could still decide to try him.

Giffords, partially blind, her right arm paralyzed and limp, came face-to-face with Loughner at the sentencing, standing beside her husband as he spoke of her struggles to recover from being shot in the head.

"Her life has been forever changed. Plans she had for our family and her career have been immeasurably altered," said astronaut Mark Kelly, both he and his wife staring at the shooter inside a packed courtroom. "Every day is a continuous struggle to do those things she once was so good at."

One by one, survivors of the attack at a Giffords political event approached the podium to address Loughner, each turning toward him where he sat with his attorneys.

"You took away my life, my love and my reason for living," said Mavanell Stoddard, who was shot three times and cradled her dying husband in her arms as he lay bleeding on the sidewalk after shielding her from the spray of bullets.

Loughner's parents sat nearby, his mother sobbing.

Some victims, including Giffords, welcomed the plea deal as a way to move on. It spared them and their families from having to go through a potentially lengthy and traumatic trial and locks up the defendant for life. Both sides reached the deal after a judge declared that Loughner was able to understand the charges against him. After the shooting, he was diagnosed with schizophrenia and underwent forcible psychotropic drug treatments. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New blacklist aims to deter smartphone theft

Database. Phones to go on an electronic list in Canada in a move to deter thieves, protect personal data

Canada's wireless carriers are targeting smartphone theft by setting up a database that will blacklist lost or stolen phones to prevent them from being re-activated.

The move would also help protect personal data on such devices, the Canadian Wireless Telecommunications Association said Thursday.

Smartphones are worth $600 to $700 and can be resold on the black market, noted association president Bernard Lord.

"With this database, it makes that a lot less attractive because the buyer of the stolen phone will not be able to connect to any network in Canada," Lord said from Ottawa.

"It eliminates the incentive for stealing a device."

The idea is also to reduce the black-market value of a smartphone in the eyes of criminals, Lord added.

Once consumers call their wireless carrier to report their smartphone lost or stolen, the device's internal identification number goes on the electronic blacklist.

Lord said even though more smartphones are lost than stolen, law enforcement officials have raised concerns about the issue.

The database for the Canadian wireless industry will be up and running by September 2013 and Canada's carriers will also be contributing to an international database to help prevent smartphone theft, he said.

However, consumers who have their smartphones lost or stolen are "not off the hook" for paying their smartphone contracts.

A website will also be set up by the association to help consumers protect their smartphone data and help protect themselves from theft.

Lord said the smartphone's ID number — called the international mobile electronic number — will be verified by carriers to make sure the device has not been lost or stolen.

Canadians are a humble bunch. Maybe too humble. Within a few weeks, Gov. Gen. David Johnston will bestow a final batch of bravery decorations on Canadian troops who fought in southern Afghanistan, but the list likely won't include the nation's highest battle honour: the Victoria Cross.

The notion that Canada will exit its first major shooting war in 60 years without such recognition has some asking what a Canadian soldier must do to win the honour.

The stringent process that sees a nomination pass through no less than three committees of senior officers ensures that selection is based on merit. Even still, throughout the war

She had previously helmed the similar documentary *The Real M*A*S*H* and was asked by History to produce another show with a compelling real-life tale that somehow mirrored the Tarantino film.

"I'm not a Tarantino fan — I hadn't seen the film, I wasn't familiar with the story," she admits in an interview.

"So I had to watch the film and then start looking around for something that was similar in real life — and that took a while."

She eventually came across the story of Operation Greenup, a covert mission ordered by the U.S. military's Office of Strategic Services.

Jewish refugees Hans Wijnberg of Holland and Fred Mayer of Germany joined the U.S. army eager to help the Allied effort against Nazi forces. They met at an OSS training camp while learning guerilla warfare.

"It felt like I had my chance to do what I set out to do — kill Nazis," says Mayer in the documentary. "That's why all the Jewish boys joined."

They parachuted onto a glacier in Germany so they could gather intelligence on the Brenner Pass, the main supply route into Italy. They landed in deep snow, without skis, and after a long journey they reached a small hamlet, where they claimed to be members of a German alpine unit.

"These missions had a high rate of failure, they didn't really know what they were doing, there was a lot of making things up as they went along," says Sook Lee.

Through interviews and dramatic re-enactments, the documentary covers how the men then based themselves in safehouses and began sending information back to the U.S. while posing as Germans.

Social financing. Feds consider private funding to improve lives of needy

The federal government wants to tap into a "gold mine" of private-sector funding to finance its social programs — a new approach the New Democrats are dismissing as little more than budget cuts in disguise.

Human Resources Minister Diane Finley launched a "call for concepts" on Thursday, asking businesses, not-for-profits and the volunteer sector to come up with fundamentally new ideas for jointly financing improvements in the lives of the needy.

The launch is a tentative step into the realm of social financing — an approach that is being tested in the United Kingdom and the United States. It invites private-sector investors to provide up-front money and then collect a return on projects that government traditionally pays for, such as homelessness or hunger.

"It's our first official step in inviting your ideas to the table that can help shape future social policy in Canada — in a new way," Finley told a Toronto forum.

"It's time for us to unleash individual initiative so that those who are motivated can

Not impressed

The Opposition NDP immediately attacked the idea, accusing the Conservatives of privatizing social services for ideological reasons, based on a model that has flopped in other countries.

- "What they're proposing is a public-relations exercise to justify new cuts to services for Canadians," said Nycrole Turmel.

help others, and those who need help are given the opportunity to take more responsibility for themselves."

The government wants to collect ideas until the end of the year and then, if all goes well, put out a call for proposals or identify pilot projects. Eventually, Finley foresees a broader "social partnerships" strategy.

"It's really community leaders who can best understand their local challenges, identify solutions and get results," Finley said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 2 dead in blaze at industrial plant

Toxic explosion.

Massive fire was one of two in Quebec Thursday, as another raged in Old Montreal

Two people were reported killed as of press time as an explosion loud enough to be heard for kilometres ripped through an industrial plant Thursday, triggering a fire that produced a thick, dark cloud of toxic smoke.

The blast and fire sent 19 other people to hospital, some with severe burns. The two victims were found in the rubble of the decimated processing plant.

The incident occurred in Quebec's Eastern Townships at the Sherbrooke facility belonging to Neptune Technologies & Bioresources, which produces health products, such as Omega-3 derived from marine life.

Martin Carrier, a Sherbrooke police spokesman, said more than 100 people in Sherbrooke and surrounding suburbs phoned within a minute.

Emergency crews are shown outside Neptune Technologies and Bio Resources in Sherbrooke, Que., Thursday, where a large explosion at the plant sent a number of people to hospital with serious injuries. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"They heard the explosion," Carrier said. "It was a big noise. A lot of black smoke. You could see it everywhere in the city."

It was the first of two major fires Thursday in Quebec.

Hours later, flames were skipping off a rooftop in Old

Montreal as emergency crews were called in to deal with a blaze a block away from the famous Notre-Dame Basilica, close to the Montreal La Presse newspaper which had to be evacuated. There were no reports of injuries in the Montreal fire. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aftershock fear as Guatemala earthquake death toll tops 50

7.4 magnitude. Quake caused terror over a wide area; damage reported in all but one of the country's 22 states

Danger zone

"They have no drinking water, no electricity, no communication and are in danger of experiencing more aftershocks."

President Otto Perez Molina speaking at a news conference

Guatemalans huddled in the cold streets of an earthquake-ravaged town without communications or power on Thursday, one day after the worst temblor since 1976 shook nearly the entire country, killing at least 52 people and leaving another 22 people missing.

President Otto Perez Molina said the powerful 7.4-magnitude quake that hit Wednesday morning off the Pacific coast affected as many as 1.2 million people. He said a little more than 700 people were in shelters, with most opting to stay with family or friends.

The president said there-had been 70 aftershocks in the first 24 hours after the quake, some as strong as magnitude 4.9.

Damaged homes will be among the biggest problems the country will face in the coming days, Perez added.

Guatemalans fearing aftershocks huddled in the streets of the mountain town of San Marcos, the most affected area, where at least 40 people died. It was the strongest earthquake to hit Guatemala since a 1976 temblor that killed 23,000. The quake centred off the town of Champerico. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran recalls excitement of being on forefront of emerging female workforce and military service

ROSANNA HAROUTOUNIAN

Second World War veteran Helen Rapp said she doesn't want young Canadians to forget the women who served in war.

"We opened the door for women who are in the military now," she said. "That is what we're really very proud of."

In 1941, Rapp left her hometown of Schumacher, Ont., to work in a munitions factory in Hamilton. "There was a catch, though," said Rapp. "I couldn't go without my mother because I was only 15." Her mother worked in the cafeteria, while Rapp helped make barrels for bofor guns.

"I went out in overalls, with my hair tied back, to this station," said Rapp, recalling she was met at the station by an older man and five younger men," said Rapp.

When the younger men started whistling, the older man stood up for her.

Joining the war effort

Factory girls for their soldier boys

As husbands, sons, brothers, and fathers were called out to fight on the front lines, some women also thrust themselves into unknown territory by joining munitions factories in the 1940s to supply the men with the weapons they needed for battle.

For some women at the time it was their first job. For others, it was a moral decision to leave their homes and families behind to provide for the war effort.

Women quickly learned their ways around the factories to create weapons such as cannons and ammunition while grappling with the fear of what the war may bring. At the same time, however, it also gave women newfound freedom from social constraints at home.

"He said, 'There'll be none of that. She is a member of this crew. You treat her properly.'" Rapp said she nicknamed him Fibber McGee after a character from a radio program.

Rapp said she made friends with four girls from Prince Albert, whose apartment was as busy as "Grand Central Station." The girls would visit the dancehall to meet soldiers training at Hamilton's Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

"You never, ever, did not have a date," said Rapp, laughing. Rapp said one air force trainee from England, Jeff, was a great dancer who Rapp worked in the factory until 1942. At 16, she pretended she was 18 so she could enter the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Ottawa, where she lives today.

She worked in Ottawa as a section sergeant of the directorate of signals.

Veterans speak about what was once taboo

Helen Rapp, a veteran of the Second World War, says that while soldiers are more open to sharing their war-time experiences, the Canadian government can still do more to support veterans.

"The majority of men never talked," said Rapp, who served as a section sergeant at the Directorate of Signals in Ottawa from 1942 to 1946. "When they came home, they got into civilian clothes, and that was the end of it."

She said that was an improvement from the First World War, when soldiers were shot when they couldn't handle the stresses of war. "It was called shell-shock," she said. "They thought, 'You're just putting this on. You don't want to fight.'"

Rapp said that when she visits classes to talk about her experiences, she asks students whether they have relatives who served in the military.

"They say, 'Oh yes, my granddad was, or my uncle, but they never talked.' And they didn't," said Rapp. "They just wanted to forget the bad stuff."

"You look at these old fellas and these old gals and ask, 'Where were you posted? What did you do?'" said Rapp. "There's a bond there."

Rapp's husband Jerry Bowen, a veteran of Canada's navy and armed forces, agrees.

"The fellows who were with you at the time have an understanding others don't," said Bowen. "Whenever we get together, we have a good talk."

Rapp said that while Veteran's Affairs Canada is better-equipped to identify and deal with soldiers suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder, recent cuts are putting the department under strain.

"They should never have cut back the services that they did," said Rapp. "They haven't in the (United) States. They cut back every department but Veteran's Affairs, and we were hoping they would do the same here, but (Defence Minister Peter) MacKay decided no."

The Union of Veterans' Affairs Employees predicted in January that the government's plan to cut $226 million from the Veterans Affairs budget in the next two years would result in 500 job cuts by 2015.

"They're short-staffed now," said Rapp. "Where before someone was looking after five or six people, their load is more now."

Rapp said part of the reason she speaks to other Canadians is to ensure they know that veterans should be valued.

"We want to show them that we were there. We made history."

Paying tribute. Bomb Girls actress honoured to salute women like one she portrays in TV series

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

Growing up studying history, Charlotte Hegele learned all about the men who fought the Second World War. It was only years later, reading the script of Bomb Girls, that she really learned about the women.

"I think a lot of young people blur history together and they don't realize that there are specific pockets of time where extraordinary things happened," said Hegele. "It's so important that we tell women's stories."

Hegele plays Kate Andrews, a young woman who flees from her abusive father, a tyrannical street preacher, to Toronto, where she works at Victory Munitions.

The main characters on Bomb Girls are inspired by the real Canadian women who worked in munitions factories. They built bombs that could explode with one false move, in factories they believed could be a target for an attack on Canadian soil.

"On World War II, when I was in school, we spoke so much about men," she said. "We, assumed, for whatever reason, that women during war would just be sitting at home taking care of the family waiting for their man to

"Some American viewers have been confused because one of the events that happens in the first season is Pearl Harbor, but it doesn't happen until the end. And of, course, Pearl Harbor is the reason the States got involved in the war to begin with... come home, waiting for the soldiers to come home, when, in fact, their place in society became pivotal to the success of the Allies."

Bomb Girls shows why the war was pivotal for women, how they went to work when their country needed them to and never turned back.

"It's hard for me to imagine how it really would have felt to be a woman at that time — but I think that women were just itching to be given equal opportunities as men," Hegele said. "It must have been not just liberating but exciting to be able to do jobs — jobs they actually kept."

For Hegele, telling stories about Canadian history is "an important public service" that she learned from her grandfather.

Dr. Joseph Walmsley was a medical officer who fought in Dieppe. When he returned, he would speak at school Remembrance Day ceremonies.

"He would come in with his medals — it was a very proud moment, to see him come and speak in his full uniform," she said. "I wasn't just proud that he was the speaker, it was because he was so proud. It was a moment for him to give some perspective for young people and understanding of what he actually did."

Meeting her inspiration

Hegele has had the chance to meet some of the real Bomb Girls who are the show's inspiration. Her first time was at the show's premier in Ottawa.

She recalls thinking so much about her character during the filming and then realizing, at the premiere, the impact Bomb Girls would have on the real women who lived that story.

"It was really scary," she said. "At that moment I thought, 'Okay, I really hope we did them justice and we created something that was respectful and honoured their accomplishments and that they would be proud to watch."

"The original Bomb Girls seemed moved," she said. "At the time of the war, perhaps, it didn't seem for them that they were doing anything extraordinary because it was what their country needed them to do and they were just doing what they could do. But it's really important for our country to know now about the sacrifices they made."

Suit targets 7 Up antioxidant claims

A U.S. advocacy group wants to take the fizz out of 7 Up's antioxidant claims. The Center for Science in the Public Interest, which advocates for food safety and nutrition, is part of a lawsuit against Dr Pepper Snapple Group Inc. for touting an added antioxidant in some 7 Up varieties.

The suit, filed Thursday in California, says the claim is misleading because it gives the impression the antioxidants come from fruit.

Go it alone, or go to an adviser? Depends on your comfort level

Investing. This is the third of a three-part series on getting into the stock market

IN THE MARKET
Bryan Borzykowski
For Metro

It's never been easier to get into the stock market. You can invest online, through an adviser and at your branch. You can buy stocks, mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, fixed-income and more.

Investing is so simple that it can be overwhelming. Where do you start? What should you buy? How much do you need?

Novice investors will likely want to start with an adviser. They understand the market and know which products are the best. It's also their job to make your money grow, which is hard for most people to do on their own.

Some financial planners, such as bank-based advisers, are free, though others can be expensive, depending on what you want them to do. Many charge a flat fee that includes investing and developing a financial plan.

As well, advisers typically invest in mutual funds, which come with a hefty management ratio. Usually, a mutual-fund company will take around two per cent of someone's invested assets to cover expenses. If you don't know what you're doing, though, it's worth paying for the advice.

Savvy investors often buy securities online. Every bank has its own web-based brokerage, but there are other firms, such as Qtrade, Interactive Brokers and Questrade, that offer similar services.

Do-it-yourself investors often buy stocks and exchange-traded funds — a basket of stocks that track a specific index — that don't come with the same management fees as mutual funds do. (Stocks don't come with any management costs.) There is a trading fee, but, depending on how often you trade, it can be negligible.

Per trade costs range between $6.99 and $29.99 — it depends on the bank and how often you buy and sell — but it's often cheaper than buying mutual funds with an adviser.

Once you figure out how you want to invest and with what products, you need to decide what type of account to use. Registered Retirement Savings Plans (RRSP) are still the most popular investment account, as you only have to pay tax on the total account balance when you withdraw, likely in retirement.

Tax-Free Savings Accounts, which were introduced in 2009, are giving the RRSP a run for its money. Whatever you invest in a TFSA grows tax-free. While you don't get a tax refund, like you do when you invest in an RRSP, you don't have to pay the CRA when you withdraw.

There are also non-registered accounts that offer preferential tax treatment on capital gains — the difference between what you bought a security for and what it's sold for — and dividends. Most people turn to non-registered accounts after maxing out their RRSP.

See what I mean about choice? It's amazing anyone invests in the stock market at all.

But don't get flustered; investing really is easy. Check out your bank's online brokerage account to see what DIY investing has to offer, or talk to a financial adviser for more hands-on help.

U.S. stores run scared of breastfeeding doll

We've got dolls that wet, crawl and talk. We've got dolls with perfect hourglass figures. We've got dolls with swagger. And we've got plenty that come with itty bitty baby bottles.

But it's a breastfeeding doll whose suckling sounds are prompted by sensors sewn into a halter top at the nipples of little girls that caught some flak after hitting the U.S. market.

"I just want the kids to be kids," Bill O'Reilly said on his Fox News show when he learned of the Breast Milk Baby. "And this kind of stuff. We don't need this."

By the numbers

$89

The dolls aren't cheap at $89 US a pop. After unsuccessfully peddling them to U.S. retailers large and small, the company now has them listed at half price on their website in time for the holidays this year.

What, exactly, people don't need is unclear to Dennis Lewis, the U.S. representative for Berjuan Toys, a family-owned, 40-year-old doll maker in Spain that can't get the dolls onto mainstream shelves more than a year after introducing the line in the U.S.

"We've had a lot of support from lots of breastfeeding organizations, lots of mothers, lots of educators," said Lewis, in Orlando, Fla.

"There also has been a lot of blowback from people who maybe haven't thought to think about really why the doll is there and what its purpose is."

"Usually they are people that either have problems with breastfeeding in general, or they see it as something sexual."

THREE WORDS: FOUR MORE YEARS, AND ONE RECORD NUMBER OF RETWEETS

THE LIST
Neil Morton

1 Call your hockey parody. Hockey blogger Harrison Mooney co-wrote and stars in a hockied version of Robyn's hit Call Your Girlfriend on YouTube called Call The Union. His hilarious plea to the NHL and NHLPA to get a deal done went viral. It features Mooney in a Vancouver Canucks jersey dancing and singing rather poorly. This might be just the jolt the NHL needed. Watch the vid at metronews.ca.

2 Most retweeted tweet, ever. "Four more years" was the simple yet concise three-word tweet that came out from @BarackObama Tuesday night, along with a picture of Barack and Michelle in a warm embrace. It was retweeted nearly 800,000 times — the highest number ever. President of the United States for another term — and King of the Twittersphere, too.

3 Need help? Call @justinbieber. New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie took to tweeting Justin Bieber to get the word out about Hurricane Sandy New Jersey Relief Fund: "@justinbieber my girls are big fans. Will u help us spread the word about NJReliefFund? For more info: http://tinyurl.com/anufbos #WeWillRebuild." Biebs, always helping causes, obliged, retweeting to his nearly 30 million followers.

4 Falcons 8-0. The Atlanta Falcons were once one of the laughingstocks of the NFL, but their franchise can now do no wrong. With a star QB in Matt Ryan, they are halfway to a perfect season this year after beating the (hapless) Dallas Cowboys 19-13 on Sunday. Even if they don't go unbeaten, a Super Bowl appearance is definitely in their sights — if they beat da Bears!

5 How to use paparazzi. As Maroon 5 frontman Adam Levine and his girlfriend were leaving a lunch spot in L.A., trailed by paparazzi, he made a makeshift sign encouraging passersby to "Text Red Cross to 90999" for Hurricane Sandy victims. My genius idea: Every celebrity should do this while being trailed by the paps — have a sign handy to promote a philanthropic cause.

6 Mo bro! I'm proud to be growing a stache for the first time ever — well, since the excitement of facial hair in Grade 8. It's for Movember Canada, of course, which raises money and awareness for men's health issues such as prostate cancer and mental illness. Give at ca.movember.com or donate to me personally at mobro.co/4648193. Thanks!

7 Extreme Cougar Wives. A program airing later this month on TLC called Extreme Cougar Wives features couples with wide-ranging age differences, including 65-year-old Stephanie, who is in love with 28-year-old Octavio. While this "cougar" thing may have hit its tipping point now, all the power to these women. If men can date way younger women — creepy! — then why not turn the tables?

8 Etiquette expert. If etiquette confuses you, like in my case (I get confused over when not to wear plaid) what better place to turn than Canadian etiquette expert Karen Cleveland. She tackles all things etiquette on her blog — mannersaresexy.com — from the traditional — how to bring your own wine to a restaurant — to the taboo — why your company should have topless meetings (as in, sans mobile devices).

9 Trail Blazer, not. A new iPhone app called Trail Blazer that's geared toward kids stars a buffalo who bikes and snowboards past northern Alberta landmarks while avoiding obstacles and collecting coins. Oh, and the game is made by Syncrude, one of Canada's largest producers of oil from Alberta's oilsands, and includes feel-good, pop-up messages about the company. Game over.

Eyewitnessed robbery

Biker-gang raids shopping mall

This amazing image shows the dramatic moment a gang of robbers made their escape on motorcycles in a shopping centre.

Six people riding three motorbikes and carrying axes drove into Brent Cross Shopping Centre in north London, England.

METRO

Photographer's viewpoint

"It was like a Hollywood film. I would never have imagined someone would do that in a shopping centre. It was like a scene out of James Bond."

Rick Treister, photographer
Treister was on his way to the Apple store in Brent Cross Shopping Centre when he heard the sound of screaming and breaking glass. He managed to get one picture of the robbers as they passed him at full speed.

Details of robbery

- Panic in the shopping mall. Eyewitnesses said the thieves sped into the first floor of the shopping mall and headed for the Fraser Hart high-end jewelry store before smashing windows to get at the valuables on display. Shoppers began to panic as the robbery took place, with many people running for the exits. Some shops would not let customers leave while the incident was underway, witnesses said.

- Bikes abandoned. The motorbikes used in the robbery were found abandoned in Mill Hill, north London, 15 minutes after the robbery took place. Flying Squad detectives from the capital's police department have released footage of the theft taking place, to help in appeals for witnesses and information. So far, no arrests have been made.

- Not an isolated incident. The smash-and-grab incident came a day before a pawnbroker's store was targeted about three kilometres away by another motorbike gang.

Lindsay Lohan plays Liz Taylor in the Lifetime TV movie Liz & Dick, which airs Nov. 25. HANDOUT

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Why we still love Liz

Rewind. In celebration of the Lohan-led TV movie Liz & Dick, the Reel Guys pick their faves from the 'greatest movie star of all'

Richard: Mark, I know we'll get to the good Liz Taylor films in a second, but I'd like to start with Boom! a strange movie about a much-married booze hound (Liz wearing Vegas-inspired Kabuki gowns!) and a penniless poet (Dick) who romances her in the final hours of her life. This one fails on virtually every front, except that in its awfulness it has a campy charm, and for the ones who get the joke, great entertainment value.

Mark: Boom? Richard, you are perversel! But I have to admit that even Taylor's better films veer toward camp. Look at Butterfield 8, which I consider her essential mid-career movie. She plays an amoral man-eater who's a borderline prostitute. The movie has the greatest line Liz Taylor ever committed to celluloid, "Mama, face it, I was the slut of all time!" Although the movie is badly dated, it makes a strong case for the return of the negligee.

RC: I guess I like anything with Liz and Burton. Like The V.I.P.s. As if having Liz and Dick on screen wasn't enough star power The V.I.P.s adds in Orson Welles, Maggie Smith and a host of other early '60s A-listers. The melodramatic story is set on one night at the Heathrow Airport first class lounge. Liz looks amazing in this, but for me the highlight is Welles's sleazy movie producer who'll do anything—including marrying someone he hardly knows—to avoid a whopping tax bill.

MB: It must be some kind of meta-theme in Taylor's work: fat old guys stealing the movie from The Most Beautiful Woman In The World. Burl Ives has the same effect in Cat on a Hot Tin Roof. When he's onscreen, you forget about Taylor, which is quite a feat. Liz is a good little scene chews in this adaptation of Tennessee Williams' mediocre play. Lots of scenes occur in the bedroom, giving her ample opportunity to dress and undress.

RC: Burton was Liz's most famous co-star, but she frequently co-starred with Montgomery Clift, who once said, "She feels like the other half of me." Check out Suddenly Last Summer or A Place in the Sun to see their chemistry.

MB: To my mind, Taylor was just a movie star until she played Martha in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf. Brilliantly directed and guided by Mike Nichols, she revealed herself to be a great actress as well.

Twilight star a child no Lautner

Transforming in the spotlight. Taylor Lautner talks spending his formative teen years as the world's most famous werewolf

Metro World News in Hollywood

Taylor Lautner started the Twilight franchise when he was 15 years old, and in the five years since he's become an international celebrity. The end of your teenage years can be awkward enough as is, but being under the media spotlight adds a whole different level of discomfort. "It's amazing how much a 15-year-old to a 20-year-old grows up and matures just regularly. Going through this, it definitely was at an accelerated rate," he says. "[The scrutiny] definitely added to it. It was the part of it that we never predicted."

The first lesson Lautner had to learn was to not just hide from the world. "When something like that happens to you, you tend to [withdraw]," says Lautner, who became a tabloid staple when rumours about him dating Taylor Swift circulated in 2009.

"The worst thing you can do in that situation is just lock yourself up inside your house and not do anything and just be scared. You just have to think about things more and maybe just plan more in advance, but you don't want to change who you are and everything you do just because of it."

Of course, he did have to make some changes because of his fame — like where he spends his free time. "I haven't been to a mall in a while and I haven't been to a theme park in a while, but I figure out how to get into movie theatres," he says. "I do [wear a disguise], but they don't work at all for some reason, and I don't know why. I think I literally just have to put prosthetics on because literally I put a baseball hat on, glasses,

Looking ahead

So where does Lautner go from here? Certainly the Twilight franchise has given him a leg up over other 20-year-old actors, but his first non-franchise entry, last year's Abduction, was a critical and commercial failure. Lautner's plan to avoid another stinker, he says, is to diversify. "I'm looking forward to doing something different for myself and challenging myself," he says. "I don't want to do the same thing over and over again. My goal is to challenge myself to a wide variety of roles and genres of film."

pull the hat down, I look in the mirror and I'm like, 'All right, you are set. You don't look anything like yourself.' And the second I step outside, it's almost like I'm wearing nothing."

What happens after you've spent five years as a vampire?

Catching up with the Cullens. The actors you've come to know as Edward's family share their post-Twilight plans

The actors who portray the Cullen family in the Twilight series have had the luxury of a steady gig for five years now — something of a rarity for a film actor. But that's all over now. So, who's ready for life after Twilight and who's not? We checked in with the Cullens.

Kellan Lutz: "I've been working on my clothing line for about two years called Abbott + Main, which is another one of my passions — fashion. It's in Nordstrom, it's in Bloomingdale's, it's doing great. Career-wise, I love action movies so I'm producing a couple..."

Nikki Reed: "I just put out an album. Every song is written by my husband and me, and we sing together. We also have a song on the Twilight soundtrack. I did four really cool films this year, two I'm especially proud of — one called Empire State with Liam Hemsworth and ... In Your Eyes, that was written ... by Joss Whedon."

Jackson Rathbone: "I've been focusing on my production company, trying to get projects launched. It's a learning process as a producer just as much as I constantly learn as an actor. I do have hopes to direct. And I always make independent music through my record label, Happy Jack Music."

Ashley Greene: "We're all thankfully working. I'm doing this movie, CBGB, right now that's very independent. Everyone involved is a well-oiled machine. It's just fun..."

Peter Facinelli: "I was doing Nurse Jackie and the Twilight saga literally shooting simultaneously for three or four years, so it's hard even now going to Nurse Jackie and not having another job to go to."

Elizabeth Reaser: "We had careers before this. I know how to manage what that lifestyle is, and you find a way to be creative and be useful in your life when you're not working."

Director. Deepa Mehta

Stars. Satya Bhabha, Shahana Goswami, Rajat Kapoor

Deepa Mehta, one of Canada and India's premiere filmmakers, melds history and mysticism in her adaptation of Salman Rushdie's Booker Prize-winning novel, set against the 1947 partition of India. Two boys born at the exact moment of India's independence from the British Empire are switched by a nurse — a poor boy put in a rich family and the rich with an itinerant musician. There are numerous insights into India, its culture and incredibly rich modern history.

Smashed

Director. James Ponsoldt

Stars. Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Aaron Paul, Octavia Spencer

Smashed is a clear-headed look at drunkenness. Mary Elizabeth Winstead and Aaron Paul play a couple on a slow climb to the bottom, watching their lives stagger by through the bottom of a pint glass. It's given a brutally honest (though often funny) depiction of people who don't realize they have a problem until it is too late. By then their world is crumbling, and it is heartbreaking to watch two people in love separated by the pull of a vodka bottle. It's a well acted, compelling and sobering portrait of a person in crisis.

Longing for that 1980s bully

scener@metronews.ca

Contemporary bullying is a lot more diabolical than it used to be, mainly because the physical and psychological assault no longer lets up when the school bell rings.

Social media has made it possible to keep the harassment train chugging along with the relentlessness of a freight train, 24/7.

With the 10th annual Bullying Awareness Week kicking off Nov. 12, we take a wistful look back at 1980s movie meatheads, those one-dimensional beat-down artists who, in the end, always got their just dessert.

Moody My Bodyguard 1980

Moody (Matt Dillon) and his flunkies run an extortion ring, taking their classmates' lunch money in exchange for "protection."

When the new kid, Clifford, refuses to go along, Moody and his minions make his life miserable: elbowing him on the basketball court, tripping him and dumping rotting garbage in his gym locker. Clifford fights back by befriendling the school's reclusive misfit Linderman (Adam Baldwin), whose reputation reduces Moody's crew to cowering gerbils. But Moody's a resilient thug and recruits his own strapping bodyguard to regain his status.

The prized pupil of a sensei with sadistic tendencies, Lawrence, (William Zabka), takes Cobra Kai's "Strike first, strike hard, no mercy" ethos outside of the dojo.

While on the surface JL fits the part of the archetypal alpha dog, cruising around in a red Avanti convertible and his late model Honda dirt bike, the All-Valley Karate champ is hurting.

He has recently broken up with his girlfriend Ali (Elisabeth Shue) and he wants her back.

Lawrence channels his anger toward the new kid from New Jersey who is making a play at his ex.

Gets What's Coming: Daniel-son waxes him with a crane kick. In defeat though, he learns humility and respect: "You're all right, LaRusso!"

Chet Donnelly Weird Science 1985

Chet (Bill Paxton) is a crewcut Neanderthal who gets his jollies picking on his younger brother Wyatt and his friend Gary.

A triple threat tormentor, this psycho sibling traffics in lapel scrunching wall-shoves, wedgies, breakfast larceny, and puerile insults that tend to feature the words 'butt-wad' and 'dickweed'.

But his top tier taunts are ever so slightly more nuanced: "You two donkey dicks couldn't get laid in a morgue."

Gets What's Coming: Computer generated vixen, supermodel Kelly LeBrock, uses her I Dream of a Supermodel Genie powers to transform Paxton into a slimy monster that could pass for Jabba the Hut's son.

Biff Tannen Back to the Future 1985

The bully plies his trade in the past, present, and future throughout the trilogy.

Resentful of anybody with more brains than the pea sized one he's packing between his ears, Biff attempts to level the intellectual playing field between him and George McFly by connecting fist with cranium. The "hello, hello, anybody home?" McFly taunt would become a popular real-life bullying technique.

The McFly family nemesis even manages to bully himself in the first sequel. "It's 'leave,' you idiot! Make like a tree, and leave. You sound like a damn fool when you say it wrong," he says, berating his younger self.

The Alpha Betas & Pi Delta Pis Revenge of the Nerds 1984

After being rejected by every frat at Adams College the nerds form their own.

The campus Greek community is less than welcoming and unleashes a series of demeaning pranks on the nerdy Tri-Lams.

Gets What's Coming: When pushed to the brink, the nerd herd unleashes its superior (and hormonally fueled) intellect. They stage a series of retaliatory attacks on the Alpha Betas, a panty raid on the Pi Delta Pi sorority complete with the installation of spy cameras and are ultimately victorious at the school's Greek Games, cementing the nerds' status as the new Big Men on Campus.

Helen Hunt appears in The Sessions as you've never seen her before

Metro World News in New York

There's not much that Helen Hunt hasn't done in Hollywood. An actress since age nine, she has appeared in dozens of movies and TV shows, had a hit sitcom and she's written, directed and produced plenty more. But Hunt heads into the great unknown with The Sessions, in which she portrays real life sexual surrogate Cheryl Cohen-Greene. Cohen-Greene worked with Mark O'Brien, whose childhood struggle with polio left him paralyzed from the neck down. While the full-frontal nudity required of the role left Hunt craving "sweat-pants and a hamburger" at the end of the day, the beautiful story was well worth the sacrifice, she tells us.

Obviously one of the most fascinating things about this movie is your character's job as a sexual surrogate for those who have physical handicaps. What was the most interesting aspect of what she does?

To me, the most interesting part was just her spirit, her vibe, her unabashed slightly loud, no-bulls—t Boston accent, her excited way of talking about sex. That was a cocktail I had never seen before.

Did you come to understand how she came into that profession?

She says a little about it in the movie. Basically she was born a very sexual person, which I hadn't heard anybody say in a movie ... She found out that there was such a thing as surrogacy and there was an entire association devoted to training people and making sure they watch out for their own weirdness affecting the other people, which is like any therapist. ... I think it seemed to be that over time, it grew into a real vocation.

Speaking of your own vocation, I think at different points in a person's career there are things you're willing to do and there are things you're not willing to do. What made you feel ready to do the nudity now?

The first thing is reading a good story. It's so rare that you read a story you haven't heard a hundred times and a character that I've seen in life or in a movie — just an utterly new person to create. And then [it's] a feeling of like, it's getting late, what am I gonna wait for or worry about? Just jump in.

What was it like to see The Sessions finally in the theatre? Do you hate watching yourself?

It's not the easiest thing in the world. I don't ever look at anything after. Now that I've seen it, I won't be seeing it ever again in my whole life.

Theatre might be Evil, but Palmer's seeing the halo on Kickstarter's head

New album. Amanda Palmer receives 1.2 million pre-orders for her latest effort before even laying down a track

LINDA LABAN

Metro World News

A compliment makes a gal feel like a million bucks, and there's no greater compliment than, well, a million bucks, which is what Amanda Palmer received via her fan-fueled Kickstarter fundraiser for her new album, Theatre is Evil.

"I got $1.2 million in pre-orders," corrects Palmer.

She's speaking from New York, where she's rehearsing with her band.

"It doesn't mean I have a million dollars. It does mean that business is good."

There's no denying the validation when fans shell out before hearing a single note of music, though.

Theatre is Evil

For Amanda Palmer, calling an album Theatre is Evil is like Snoop calling a project I Don't Like Marijuana.

- Quote. "I do love theatre, the title is highly ironic," says Palmer. "But I struggle with the current manifestation of the theatre world. It's dying a strange death and hopefully experiencing a rebirth the same way music is. It's not the artists creating it, but the way culture feels about it. So much is academic."

"It's a big symbolic gesture on the part of my fans that tells me they have an enormous amount of faith in me. But this is the relationship I have developed ... which isn't about music. It's about art and love and creating a community. The music is a bit of a red herring."

Palmer catches herself and laughs at the nature of her last statement.

"Well, if I weren't a performer, none of this would be happening," she adds.

"I'm not interested in having fans and admirers. I don't want to be a pop star. I'm among those artists who use art and music to connect."

Calvin Harris walked away from being a band musician and stepped into the role of DJ. HANDOUT

'Make music and have fun again'

New album. Scottish DJ talks about how he walked away from band life and embraced a new genre to find success

ALEKSANDRA SAGAN
Metro World News

Calvin Harris had one concept in mind when working on 18 months — his latest album, which debuted in the second spot on iTunes in Canada last week — to focus on other singers' voices.

"I just wanted to take the pressure off being a singer and a band guy, which wasn't working out for me at all," the Scottish DJ said while sitting on a couch in his room in a posh Toronto hotel.

"I just wanted to make music and have fun again."

After a gig in 2010, Harris said he told his band mates that he never wanted to sing or perform with a band again and that he was going to be making some changes.

Instead, inspired by other dance music, he started working on songs for 18 months.

The album is named after the length of time it took to produce the tracks, he said of the obscure title.

He wrote the song Bounce and asked singer Kelis to perform the vocals.

"I'm still indebted to her for doing that," he said, adding that Kelis was reluctant because she thought it was a weird song.

Kelis' vocals on the song let other artists know he was interested in collaborations.

Eventually, 18 months became a labour of many voices, including Rihanna, Ellie Goulding and Dizzee Rascal. We Found Love — his mix with R&B sensation Rihanna — became an instant hit.

It topped music charts in 16 countries, including Canada.

Still, Harris said he is happy he stuck with his roots, since most of the featured artists on his album are from the U.K.

"I think it's kind of nice. It means I've not completely watered everything down and got American voices all over the place."

Promoting the new album, Harris has played shows across Canada.

This fall, he played in front of full houses in Calgary, Toronto and London.

Harris' favourite new song to perform at these shows has been Feel So Close — a track on which he sings.

He said that is his pick because it gets the best reception from the fans.

For any possible future albums, Harris does not know if he will continue working with other artists in the same way.

But, one thing is for certain.

"I'm definitely not going to be singing on things," said Harris. "I definitely can't stretch that across a whole album."

Pattinson and Stewart 'basically live together again'

While the reunion between Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson hasn't become official yet, the Twilight co-stars are practically living together again, according to Us Weekly. Sources say Pattinson has been spending his nights lately at Stewart's new $2 million home despite his own being nearby. "They basically live together again," a source says.

Taylor Swift

Why do Taylor's relationships fail? Ask her friends

Taylor Swift's troubled love life is legendary — and the inspiration for many a hit song for the singer. But to hear her friends tell it, Swift herself is to blame for the fact that none of her relationships last. "All Taylor wants is to be loved," a source close to the singer tells Us Weekly. "She's a prisoner of her work. It takes up all of her time. She overworks relationships. She puts so much pressure on them, it ultimately kills the deal. Then she's baffled as to why it didn't work."

Lawrence and her boyfriend are best buds

Jennifer Lawrence

Hunger Games star Jennifer Lawrence and her boyfriend, X-Men: First Class co-star Nicholas Hoult, have a pretty good thing going, to hear Lawrence tell it. "My boyfriend is honestly my best friend, and hopefully I'm his best friend too," Lawrence tells Elle magazine in an interview. "He's my favourite person to be around and he makes me laugh harder than anybody. We can eat Cheetos and watch beach volleyball and we turn into perverted Homer Simpsons, like, 'Oh, she's got a nice ass.' I never thought we'd have such different opinions on asses."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Cyrus: I'm only having one marriage (and one divorce)

Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Miley Cyrus went on The Ellen DeGeneres Show to clear up a few things regarding that whole "I'm having three marriages" rumour (apparently spread by father Billy Ray) that's been going around.

"There is some rumour going around that I'm having, like, 47 weddings. I'm not," Miley told Ellen on Thursday. "I'm having one wedding. That's my day and whatever I want on that day will be about me and that moment."

But that doesn't mean the wedding will be anytime soon, as the 19-year-old is working on her career. "I'm so focused on my record. ... I kind of don't want to be in between touring and trying to plan all that, because I didn't really realize until I got a wedding planning book what you have to decide on," she said. "Like, I don't care what colour the napkins are, to be honest. I really don't care."

Smart girl: Hosting three weddings sounds like a logistical nightmare. Does that mean guests have to give her three presents? Do they have to do the Electric Slide three times? And does it mean she would (inevitably) have to have three divorces?

John Travolta

Travolta's long-time friend Kirstie Alley has his back

John Travolta has been fending off a lot of accusations about his sexuality lately, with several male masseurs suing the star for sexual harassment and assault this year, but he has at least one ally in his corner — longtime friend Kirstie Alley. "I know John with all my heart and soul, and he's not gay," the actress tells Barbara Walters in an interview, calling Travolta the "greatest love of my life." Alley has her own theories for the persistent speculation about Travolta's sexuality. "I think in Hollywood, if someone gets famous enough, and they're not out doing drugs and womanizing, what do you say about them?"

If there's one thing I learned from visiting a gazillion wineries across Australia in record time is that there's more to Down Under than red wines. While they've become synonymous with the dark, spicy goodness that is shiraz; the thick, meaty fruit of Cabernet Sauvignon; and more recently, plump, fruit-forward pinot noir, the Aussies make darn fine white wines too.

I think it was me who said that you really have to wrap your lips around reds before you can fully appreciate whites.

Oz's New World climate is a perfect home for the development of white wines with rich, flowing personalities that, more often than not, massage unique flavour profiles from familiar fruit.

Chardonnay, Sauvignon blanc and riesling are the big three whites in Australia — with pinot grigio making some major in-roads, as is the lesser know viognier.

Yet another expat French varietal from the Rhone Valley, viognier's plush, white pepper character and lightly tropical style is well represented in Yalumba's 2011 Y Series Viognier ($15.99 to $17.99) from South Australia.

It's a great wine to pair with a wide variety of cheeses, along with grand roast poultry dinners, and Thai and Asian cuisine. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Beef stir-fry is an all-time favourite for the family, especially the kids. It's the one way I make sure my kids are getting their protein, vegetables and grains.

Be sure not to overcook the vegetables. Use the best quality steak, such as rib eye, sirloin, filet or New York. You can serve this over rice or rice noodles. The colours and textures of this dish give it great eye appeal.

NHL negotiations alive in New York

Lockout. Bettman says 'still a lot of work to do' after fourth straight day of talks

The NHL and NHL Players' Association will meet for a fourth straight day in an attempt to salvage a shortened season.

Key negotiators from the league and union, including NHL commissioner Gary Bettman and NHLPA executive director Donald Fehr, met for more than five hours Thursday and indicated talks will continue on Friday.

"I don't really have much to say," said Bettman. "We met with the players' association the last three days and we're planning on meeting again tomorrow. But I'm not going to discuss the negotiations or the

Crunch time

The sides have met for more than 20 hours over the last week, starting with an informal eight-hour session between deputy commissioner Bill Daly and NHLPA special counsel Steve Fehr in Chicago last Saturday.

- Thursday's meeting was viewed by both sides as extremely important.

- Other weighty topics, including revenue sharing and contract rules, were discussed by the NHL and NHLPA earlier in the week and still need to be worked out before the 54-day lockout comes to an end.

substance of what we're talking about.

"I really don't think that would be helpful for the process."

Fehr was similarly tight-lipped.

"All I can say is that we discussed a wide range of topics relating to the issues between us," he said. "I really can't say more than that at this point."

Little is known about exactly where talks stand.

Sources told The Canadian Press that the NHL responded to a pair of union proposals on Thursday. On Wednesday, the NHLPA tabled new offers regarding revenue sharing and the league's "make whole" provision, with the union suggesting a system where the players' share in revenue drops to 50-50 in the third year of the deal.

The "make whole" provision is seen as the fundamental issue left to solve.

With all regular-season games cancelled through Nov. 30, negotiations have reached a critical stage. Ten days will be needed from the time an agreement is struck until the season starts and there is still hope among the parties that a shortened schedule could begin by Dec. 1.

Federer moves on at ATP finals

On an indoor court, Roger Federer can win even when he's not playing his best.

He proved that again Thursday at the ATP finals, beating David Ferrer 6-4, 7-6 (5) and advancing to the semifinals with a group match to spare despite struggling to land his serve and scrambling to stay in the long rallies.

"I've been very successful over the years. Probably won most titles indoors, maybe more than all the other guys combined," said Federer, who called it a natural surface for him. "But that doesn't make me the best this week."

He is, however, the big favourite. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20
Get help from someone who is more worldly-wise than you are. You may think you can get things done alone but life will be easier if you have someone to handle negotiations and read the small print that you tend to ignore.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21
Do what you feel is right and ignore those who disagree with you. You tend to do that anyway, but today there really is no time for discussion. Follow your muse wherever it chooses to lead you.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21
The right things seem to be happening at just the right time and today's Venus-Jupiter link will certainly bring good news concerning a partnership or relationship. One-to-one relationships are under excellent stars.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23
You have never been one to put dollars and cents above other things but over the next few days you must focus more on your financial situation. Could you be earning more? Yes. Should you be spending less. Double yes.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23
Your heart will rule your head today and that will lead to some seriously fun times. Friendships and social activities must come first, at least for a while. Contacts you make now will bring long-term benefits.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
There are times when it all seems to come together, and this is one of them. Both at home and at work, things will fall into place with no input from you, and that's nice. All you have to do is enjoy them.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
This is potentially one of the best days of the year as your ruler Venus, currently in your sign, links with luck planet Jupiter. Make a wish and expect it to come true, because it most likely will. Go on, ask for something outrageous.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
It's time to get serious about your aims and ambitions. Something you visualize over the next few days is potentially more than just an idle daydream. Handled the right way, it could be your future — and that future is bright.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may be tempted to say what you think people want to hear but that would be a mistake. The planets urge you to be honest, even if it means hurting a loved one's feelings. They'll thank you for it one day.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Go out of your way to be nice, even if people are not nice to you. Someone in a position of authority thinks you are ready for bigger and better things, and if your manner is positive, a promotion is likely.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You may or may not be on the move over the next few days but even if you stay close to home, you will certainly be looking at the world in a different way. You have never been one to follow the herd.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20
Today's Venus-Jupiter link will emphasize the generous side of your nature, which is rarely far from the surface. Do what you can for people in need but don't bankrupt yourself in the process — that won't help them or you. SALLY BROMPTON
